

SCHUSTERMAN VISITING ISRAELI PROFESSORS (2006-2007)

Shlomo Aronson

University of Arizona

Shlomo1@hotmail.com

(520) 243-0311

Shlomo Aronson is a Political Science Professor from the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. Aronson served as consultant to the Inter Agency Working Group in charge of implementing the American Nazi War Crimes Disclosure Act. He also was scholar in residence at the U.S. National Archives.

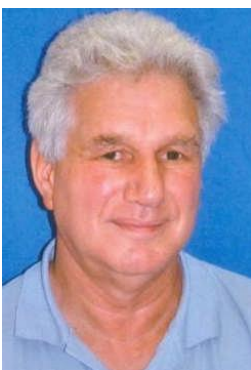

Chuck Freilich

Harvard University

Chuck_freilich@harvard.edu

(617) 384-5043

Chuck Freilich was, until recently, Israel's Deputy National Security Adviser. He is now a Senior Fellow at the Belfer Center at Harvard's Kennedy School, where he is writing a book on Israeli national security decision making. Chuck's primary areas of expertise are U.S.-Mid East policy and Israeli national security policy. He teaches political science at Tel Aviv and Hebrew Universities and also co-directs a Middle Eastern affairs consultancy. Chuck was a Senior Analyst at the Israel Ministry of Defense, focusing on strategic affairs, Policy Advisor to a cabinet minister and a Delegate at the Israeli Mission to the UN. He was the Executive Director of two non-profits and served in the Israel Defense Forces for five years (reserve major). Chuck earned his Ph.D. from Columbia University. Born in New York, he immigrated to Israel in his teens.

Yoav Gelber

University of Texas at Austin

ygelber@univ.haifa.ac.il

Yoav Gelber studied World and Jewish History at the Hebrew University for his B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. He has been a full Professor at Haifa University's Department of Land of Israel Studies, Head of the Strochlitz Institute for Research and Study of the Holocaust, and Head of the Herzl Institute for Research and Study of Zionism since. He previously served as Chair of the Department of Land of Israel Studies at the University of Haifa and as Chair of the University of Haifa's School of History. He was also a visiting professor at the Seminario Rabinnico Latinoamericano, Buenos Aires, 1993; at Knox College, Galesburg, Ill. 1996; at the Lipinsky Institute, San Diego State University, 1997; and at University of North Carolina, 2005-6.

Motti Inbari

University of Florida

minbari@mscc.huji.ac.il

Motti Inbari recently completed his Ph.D. at the Avraham Herman Institute for Contemporary Jewry at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. His dissertation was entitled, “King, Sanhedrin and Temple: Contemporary Movements Seeking to Establish a ‘Torah State’ and Rebuild the Third Temple 1984-2004.” In 2005, Motti was an adjunct lecturer at the Jezreel Valley College in Israel. Motti’s non-academic and public service contributions range from being a spokesman for the Israel Ba’Aliya party in the Israeli parliament to volunteering as an observer to the first democratic Palestinian elections.

David Nachmias

Washington University

davidna_8@hotmail.com

847-769-3263

Professor David Nachmias is a Senior Fellow Emeritus at the Israel Democracy Institute (IDI) and holds the Romulo Betancourt Chair in Political Science at Tel Aviv University. His academic and professional experience includes: Associate Director of the Urban Research Center at the University of Wisconsin, Professor of Political Science at the University of Wisconsin, Visiting Associate Professor at the J.F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University, and Visiting Associate Professor of the Department of Political Science at the University of Kentucky. Professor Nachmias received his B.A. from Tel Aviv University and his M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Oregon. He has received research grants from the Ford Foundation, the Social Science Foundation, the Graduate School Research Committee of the University of Wisconsin, the National Science Foundation, the Sapir Research Center, the Arab-Israeli Research Institute and the Ebert Frederich Foundation. In 1984 Professor Nachmias received the Fulbright Senior Research Fellow award of the U.S. Department of Education, in 1994 he received the Donald Campbell Award for Methodological Innovations in Policy Studies, and in 1998 he received the Fulbright Senior Scholar Award.

Yaacov Yadgar

Rutgers University

yadgary@mail.biu.ac.il

732-932-3572

Yaacov Yadgar is a professor in the department of Political Studies in Bar-Ilan University. He is considered a young, first-class scholar of Israeli society and politics. He specializes in the fields of culture and identity, nationalism and ethnicity, and the media. Yaacov holds a Diploma in Journalism and Communication, a B.A. in Political Science, and a Ph.D. in Political Science, all from Bar-Ilan University.

David Tal

Syracuse University

dtal@maxwell.syr.edu / dtal01@gmail.com

315-395-8785

David Tal is a Professor of History and International Relations and a visiting scholar for the 2006-2007 academic year. Professor Tal was also a visiting Associate Professor at Emory University in Atlanta in 2005-06. He specializes in the history of the Middle East, as well as nuclear proliferation and disarmament. He is a member of the Israeli Military History Association's Board, has served as an advisor to the Military and Diplomatic Studies Program at the Graduate School of History at Tel Aviv University. He is the winner of numerous grants and fellowships, including the Kennedy Library's Arthur Schlesinger Fellowship. Professor Tal has published several books, including War in Palestine, 1948: Strategy and Diplomacy (2004), edited The 1956 War: Collusion and Rivalry in the Middle East (2001), and Israel's Conception of Current Security - Origins and Development 1949-1956 (1998). His articles have appeared in a variety of journals, and he is currently completing a manuscript on the history of nuclear disarmament from 1945 to 1963. Professor Tal received his Ph.D. in History from Tel Aviv University.

AICE VISITING PROFESSOR

Avi Picard

University of Maryland

picard@umd.edu

301-405-1062

Avi Picard's specialty is Israeli society with an emphasis on ethnicity and the mass immigration in the 1950s. His Ph.D. dissertation (written in the History department at Ben Gurion University of the Negev) is about the immigration from North Africa to Israel in the 1950s and the way it was absorbed into Israeli society. During the 2005-2006 academic year, he was a Fulbright fellow at the Taub Center for Israel Studies at New York University. He has published academic articles on immigration, development towns in Israel and about the Shas political movement. He has also written about Israeli history and society in newspapers and magazines such as Ha'aretz Book Review, Azure and Makor Rishon. Dr. Picard taught at Ben Gurion University, Achva Academic College and Hertzog College in Israel. In 2006, he taught at NYU and at Brooklyn College.