

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professors 2009-2010

Hanan A. Alexander

University of California at Berkeley

Richard and Rhoda Goldman Visiting Israeli Professor
Education

Hanan Alexander is Professor of Philosophy of Education at the University of Haifa where he heads the Center for Jewish Education as well as the International School for Overseas Students. A past chair of Haifa's Department of Education, he is also a Senior Research Fellow in the Van Leer Jerusalem Institute and Chair of the Executive Board of the Schechter Rabbinical Seminary in Jerusalem. He served as Editor of the Religious Education: An Interfaith Journal of Spirituality, Growth and Transformation and Visiting Fellow in St. Edmund's College and the Center for Advanced Religious and Theological Studies at Cambridge University. Alexander received his undergraduate degree at UCLA and the American Jewish University and earned a Ph.D. from Stanford University. He received his rabbinic ordination from the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. His book, Reclaiming Goodness: Education and the Spiritual Quest (University of Notre Dame Press 2001) won a 2001-2002 National Jewish Book Award. Professor Alexander was an editor of the Philosophy of Education Yearbook for the Philosophy of Education Society (1992) as well as Ethics and Spirituality in Education: Philosophical, Theological, and Radical Perspectives for Sussex Academic Press (2004). He is currently editing Citizenship, Education and Social Conflict for Routledge Publishers and is working on a new book entitled Democracy and Distinctiveness: Liberal Education without Neutrality.

Daphne Barak-Erez

Stanford University (Fall 2009)

Richard and Rhoda Goldman Visiting Israeli Professor
Law

Professor Barak-Erez is a Stewart and Judy Colton Professor of Law as well as the Chair of Law and Security in the Faculty of Law at Tel Aviv University. Professor Barak-Erez has served in various positions including Deputy Dean of the Faculty of Law. She has lectured internationally on a number of legal topics and sits on Israel's Council of Higher Education and the Association of Public Law. Her main research and teaching areas are administrative and constitutional law. In addition, she teaches courses in the areas of feminist jurisprudence, contracts and payment systems. Professor Barak-Erez has written numerous articles on such issues as reliance in administrative law and distributive justice. She has authored a book called Outlawed Pigs: Law, Religion and Culture in Israel and she has edited several other books including: Human Rights in Private Law: The Welfare State, Globalization and International Law and Exploring Social Rights: Between Theory and Practice.

Alexander Bligh

Notre Dame University

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Political Science, History of Islam, Arab Studies

Professor Bligh is a former Advisor to the Israeli Prime Minister on Arab Affairs (1990-1992) and he served as Deputy in the Prime Minister's office for the past three years. He is currently the Chair of the Department of Political Science and Middle Eastern Studies at the College of Judea and Samaria and the Director of its Center for International Strategic Assessment. He is a Senior Lecturer in Political Science at Bar Ilan University and the Director of the Master of Arts degree program on Democracy and Democratization in the Arab World. His lecture topics include: Ethnic conflicts in comparative perspective, the history of Islam, International Relations, political and social history of the Middle East, radical Islam, refugees and human rights post WWII, regimes, the political development, security and foreign policies of Israel, Syria, Saudi Arabia and Jordan and the political, religious and economic dimensions of terror.

Igal Bursztyn

University of Tennessee

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Film and Cinema

Professor Bursztyn is an Israeli film maker who also holds the position of Full Professor Adjunct in Tel Aviv University's Faculty of Arts. Having directed dozens of full-length motion pictures, short films and documentaries, Professor Bursztyn is known as one of Israel's foremost filmmakers. He has presented and lectured about his films at various film festivals around the world including Paris, Germany, New York, Taiwan, Spain, Holland, Hungary, Portugal, Russia, Tel Aviv and Jerusalem. His books on film include Film, Language and Civil Wars of Culture (1996), Documentation Documentary, Fiction (2005) and Intimate Gazes (2009). His films include several documentaries including Displaced Persons (1979), Leibovitz in Maalot (1979), Belated Talk (1987), Smokescreen (1999) and Guide for the Perplexed (2005). His short dramas include Louise! Louise! (1968), Ethics V (1992) and Letters to Felice (1993). His feature films are Belfer (1976), The Glow (Zimzum) (2000), Out of the Blue (Etzbah Elohim) (2008) and he is currently working on Return of Casanova.

Ilan Fuchs

Tulane University

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Law

Professor Fuchs is an expert in secular and religious law at Bar Ilan University. He has taught about Israeli constitutional law, legal theory, legal writing, Jewish law, Jewish family law and the history of Chasidism. His research focuses on women in Jewish law, as well as general Israeli legal issues. He has clerked at the Israeli Supreme Court for its Registrar, Judge Oded Shaham and Justice Elyakim Rubenstein. Professor Fuchs received his rabbinic ordination from Bar Ilan University's Institute for Higher Torah Learning.

Naomi Gale

University of Colorado (Fall 2009)

AICE Visiting Israeli Professor

Law

Naomi Gale was born in Iraq, immigrated to Israel and was raised in Kiryat Malachi, a development town in the south of Israel. After completing her Ph.D., she went on to Western Australia to conduct fieldwork for her postdoctoral research about the emigration of the Jews from Safed at the turn of the 20th Century. Gale studies law, specializing in criminal, family and small claims, as well as Alternative Dispute Resolution, specializing in family law. She worked as a lecturer at several colleges under the auspices of Bar-Ilan University and was for a number of years a lecturer in the Departments of Political Science and Oriental studies. For several years, she acted as the coordinator of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at the Academic College of Ashkelon, where she has been working for eleven years holding the position of senior lecturer. Gale is presently completing a sabbatical at the University of Cambridge, England, comparing the Israeli and the British legal systems. She has published in the area of immigration, gender and Israeli society, with two books, Violence against Women (2003) and The Sephardim of Sydney (2005), and several articles, including pieces in the Journal of Sociology, Ethnology, NEW COMMUNITY and the International Journal of Sociology of the Family.

Raphael Israeli

California State University, Chico (Spring 2010)

Richard and Rhonda Goldman Visiting Israeli Professor

Asian/Middle East History and Culture

Dr. Israeli is a lecturer and professor of Chinese and Middle Eastern history, and Islamic civilization at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. He received his undergraduate degree in Arabic and History from The Hebrew University of Jerusalem, a Masters in East Asian History from University of California, Berkeley, and a Ph.D. also from UC Berkeley in Chinese and Islamic History. Israeli is the author of 25 books and over 100 scholarly articles such as The Islamic Challenge in Europe and Muslim Minorities in the Modern State. A frequent lecturer, he often speaks about topics such as the Jewish community of China, Jews and Israel in Arab eyes, Jews in the Arab world, sectarianism in Chinese Islam, and understanding Islam. He is teaching classes on the Arab-Israeli Conflict and the Israeli Political System at CSU, Chico this Spring.

Isaac Kfir

Syracuse University

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Political Science/Law

Professor Kfir is a lecturer at the Raphael Recanati International School, the Lauder School of Government Interdisciplinary Centre (IDC) Herzliya and a Senior Researcher at the Institute for Counter-Terrorism, Herzliya, Israel. In 1999 he was working as a Research Fellow in International Relations at the University of Buckingham before moving to the legal profession. Beginning in 2002, he worked for several years in civil litigation and insolvency before returning to academia. His current academic research interests ranged from United Nations peacekeeping, peace-building and peacemaking. Isaac has published several research papers in the field of counter-terrorism and Islamic radicalism in the Horn of Africa and the United Kingdom, as well as in the field “democracy promotion” in South Asia. He is currently working on a book on democracy in Pakistan. He received his Ph.D. from the London School of Economics.

Zach Levey

University of Colorado

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Political Science and International Relations

Professor Levey is a Senior Lecturer in the Department of Political Science at Haifa University. His research and teaching focuses on the areas of international history, the Cold War, the foreign policies of Israel, the United States and Britain, the Arab-Israeli conflict, the Great Powers and the Middle East, Middle Eastern history and international relations. His publications include: Israel and the Western Powers, 1952-1960 and Israel in Africa: 1956-1973 (forthcoming). He is co-editor of Britain and the Middle East: From Imperial Power to Junior Partner. Professor Levey serves on the peer review committees of the following academic journals: Civil Wars, Diplomatic History, International Journal of Middle East Studies, Journal of Contemporary History, The Journal of Israeli History and The Journal of Strategic Studies.

Azi Lev-On

Stanford University

Richard and Rhoda Goldman Visiting Israeli Professor
Political Communication, Political Theory

Dr. Azi Lev-On is the head of the new media track in Ariel University Center in Israel. He studies the social and political uses of the Internet, focusing on questions of collective action and democratic governance, and employing a variety of methods such as surveys and laboratory experiments. Recent research studies how and why computer-mediated communication impacts monetary transfers in trust games, how people rank news stories online, as well as Internet usage by candidates in the Israeli municipal elections 2008, and by Ultra-Orthodox women who participate in closed forums online.

Assaf Likhovski

UCLA School of Law

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor
Law and Legal History

Professor Likhovski is the Director of The Cegla Center for Interdisciplinary Research of the Law at Tel Aviv University and is an associate professor of Law and Legal History at the Faculty of Law. He also serves as an affiliated lecturer at the Israeli National Defense College as well as at the College of Administration School of Law, Rishon Le-Zion. Professor Likhovski is a member of the Israeli Bar Association. He teaches on legal history, comparative law, jurisprudence and taxation. He authored Law and Identity in Mandate Palestine and he co-edited The History of Law in a Multicultural Society: Israel 1917-1967. He also serves as Editor-in-Chief for the journal Theoretical Inquiries in the Law.

Daniel Marom

San Francisco State University (Spring 2010)

Richard and Rhonda Goldman Visiting Israeli Professor
Education

After making aliyah in 1982 from Toronto, Canada, Dr. Daniel Marom devoted his professional career to the study and practice of teaching Israel and Zionism. A historian and educator, he graduated from York University in Toronto, and got his M.A. and Ph.D. at The Hebrew University of Jerusalem. Currently, Marom holds the role of director of the Visions Unit at the Mandel Leadership Institute in Jerusalem, which is devoted to developing visions of Jewish and Israeli education as resources for the training of educational leaders for the 21st century. His published works include “After Exodus: Jewish Encounters in the Unpromised Land” (Hebrew) and “Visions of Jewish Education” as well as articles and curricula on the alternative ideas of Israel and Zionism. Dr. Marom is teaching classes on Israel Studies and Israeli Democracy and Society at SFSU this Spring.

Alexander Mishory

Rice University

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Art History

Professor Mishory is a Lecturer of Art History at The Open University in Tel Aviv. He is a well-known author and art critic in Israel and has taught at the prestigious Bezalel Art Academy in Jerusalem and the State Art Teacher’s College. He has served as a judge for the “Israel-America Cultural Foundation” Visual Arts Scholarship and has been a member of the Visual Arts Committee of the Israeli Ministry of Education and Culture’s Organization of Cultural Arts. He has published his articles widely in academic journals, as well as his art critiques in newspapers and on Israel Radio. His books include Still Life: from Depicted Objects to Real Objects (2008), Joseph Budko and H.N. Bialik’s Complete Works Edition of 1923, Modern Hebrew Poetry and Art in Harmony (2006) and Lo and Behold: Visual Aspects of Zionist Myths in Israeli Culture (Hebrew, 2000). Professor Mishory has participated in academic conferences in Israel, as well as throughout Europe and the United States.

Shlomo Mizrahi

Rutgers (Newark)

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Public Policy

Professor Mizrahi is a Senior Lecturer at Ben-Gurion University School of Management's Department of Public Policy and Administration and served as Chair of the department from 2002 until 2008. His research spans a range of public policy issues including new public management, political economy, the intersection between public and private sectors, decision-making in public policy, the welfare state and public policy and modern political economies. He has authored and co-authored a multitude of articles in these subject areas. His forthcoming co-authored book is called Israel Since 1980.

Chanan Naveh

San Diego State University

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Political Communications

Professor Naveh is a Senior Lecturer in the Department of Communication at Ashkelon's Sapir College as well as an adjunct professor at the Hebrew University's International Relations Department and Rotheberg International School. Prior to his academic career, Professor Naveh served for 36 years with the News department of Kol Israel, as Director of News, Managing Editor and Foreign News Editor. His publications include The Web as an "Israeli Solidarity Environment" During the Second Lebanon War (2008) and The Pirate Radio in Israel (2007, with Yehiel Limor). Additionally, Professor Naveh has lectured widely and written in various academic journals on the Israeli-Palestinian web war, new media and social network sites and their use in international relations and the role of the media in shaping public opinion.

Joseph Nevo

University of Texas at Austin

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

History

Joseph Nevo is a professor in the Department of Middle East Studies at Haifa University and is a research fellow at the University of Haifa's Middle East Research Institute and Jewish Arab Center and a Senior research fellow with its Meir and Miriam Ezri Center for Gulf Studies. His research has focused on political theory and development in the Arab world prior to and after the creation of the state of Israel. He has delivered papers on the relationship between Jordan and Syria, the political development of Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Syria, the involvement of the Arab states in the Palestinian issue and Arab attitudes toward Zionism. He has taught on modern Middle Eastern history, the histories of Arab countries, the history of the Palestinians, the Arab-Israeli conflict and the peace process. His books include Jordan: In Search of an Identity (Hebrew, 2005) and King Hussein and the Evolution of Jordan's Perception of a Political Settlement with Israel 1967-1988 (2006).

Muli Peleg

Rutgers University

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Political Science and Political Communication

Professor Peleg is an Associate Professor at Tel Hai College and in the School of Communication at the Netanya Academic College as well as an Adjunct Professor at Tel Aviv University. In addition, he serves as an advisor to the Peres Peace Center and has been a member of then-Prime Minister Ehud Barak's Steering Committee on Multiculturalism. His books include Terrorism and the Liberal State: A Multi-variant Approach (co-editor, 2006), Communication: From Discord to Coexistence (Hebrew, 2008), Ploughshares to Swords: Religion and Terrorism in the Contemporary World (2009) and If Words Could Kill: the Failure of the Israeli Political Discourse (Hebrew, 2003). Professor Peleg received his Ph.D. from Indiana University.

Arie Perliger

Stonybrook University

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Political Science

Professor Perliger is the Lady David Fellow in the Department of Political Science at Hebrew University. He earned his Ph.D. from the University of Haifa and focuses his research and teaching on terrorism and political violence, Middle Eastern politics, the radical right in Europe and Israel, political socialization and international security. His books include: Middle Eastern Terrorism and Countering Terrorism in Urban Environment – The Case of Jerusalem.

Larissa Remennick

Hebrew Union College/Jewish Theological Seminary

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Sociology, Anthropology

Professor Remennick is the Chair of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at Bar Ilan University. She received her Ph.D. from the Institute of Sociology at the USSR's Academy of Sciences and completed her post-doctoral fellowship at Oxford University's Department of Social Medicine and Community Health. Professor Remennick's research combines the disciplines of public health, social medicine, sociology and anthropology in an interdisciplinary manner. Her areas of expertise include international migration, immigrant integration and health, ethnic diasporas and transnationalism; gender aspects of health and wellness, sociology and politics of fertility and family planning, Russian and Soviet Jewish community, immigration and global diaspora and cancer control through the lens of social science. She serves as the editor of the peer-reviewed journal, Sociological Papers, is an advisor to the World Health Organization and the International Planned Parenthood Federation of Europe. Her publications include Russian Jews on Three Continents: Identity, Integration, and Conflict (2007) and The Cancer Problem in the Context of Modernity: Sociology, Demography, Politics (1998). She has authored multiple journal articles in English and Russian.

Martin Sherman

Hebrew Union College/University of Southern California

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Security Studies and International Policy

Professor Sherman is the academic director of the Jerusalem Summit and a research fellow in the Security Studies Program at Tel Aviv University. He is also a research fellow at the International Policy Institute for Counter-Terrorism (ICT) and was an academic advisor to the internationally known Herzilya Conference. Professor Sherman served for several years in operational capacities in the Israeli intelligence community and has held the post of ministerial advisor to the Israeli government. His books include The Politics of Water in the Middle East, (1999) and Despots, Democrats and the Determinants of International Conflict, (1998). He has been published widely in journals and has edited books and policy papers on a range of strategic and foreign policy issues. His latest work focuses on Israel's developing ties with India. Professor Sherman is a frequent television and radio commentator on foreign and security policy topics in Hebrew and English.

Matt Silver

Ohio State University

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Modern Jewish and Israeli History

Professor Silver is the Head of the General Studies Department for the Emek Jezreel College in Israel. His focus is on American Jewish history, trends in modern Jewish thought and Israeli history. Among others, he has taught courses on the media and the Middle East, the Holocaust and its impact on modern Jewish thought and comparative religious history between Judaism, Christianity and Islam. Professor Silver has also researched the activity of American Zionism during the early 20th century and his forthcoming book focuses on the work of American Zionist organizations in Mandatory Palestine. He has served on the editorial board of Ha'aretz in Israel and was a visiting professor at Central Connecticut State University, during which time he gave several courses in the Department of Communications, as well as in the Judaic Studies and History Departments.

Gayil Talshir

University of Arizona

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Political Science, Public Policy

Upon graduation from the University of Oxford and receiving her Ph.D. in 1998, Gayil Talshir received her position as a lecturer of political science at the Hebrew University, launching three intellectual paths: first, the study of ideology as a bridge between the two ‘separate tables’ of the discipline – comparative politics and political philosophy; second, the study of civil society and its relation to party democracy, in theory, comparative analysis and Israeli studies; third, a critical analysis of the welfare state: theory, ideology and policy, looking on the UK and Israel especially in the area of education. She spent a sabbatical in 2003-4 at Oxford and the University of Michigan and received her senior lecturer and tenured position at the Hebrew University in 2006. Being a great believer in the public university and its societal role, she has initiated, with colleagues, the center for citizenship and democracy of the faculty where she headed for five years the MA program in politics and civic education. Over the last three year she is the head of the public policy MA program for senior public servants, the top training course for the Israeli public sector in the hope to strengthen the theory/praxis nexus between the academy and the top policy makers in Jerusalem.

Miri Talmon-Bohm

University of Wisconsin

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Israeli Film and Culture

Dr. Talmon-Bohm has been teaching about Israeli culture and identity through film and television for more than 20 years. Her academic background includes foreign language teaching expertise. Some of the topics she currently teaches include: The politics of identity in Israeli culture, the impact of the Holocaust on Israeli consciousness, conflict and terror in Israeli life, Israeli media and its products in both American and Israeli contexts and the impact of postmodernism and globalization on Israeli culture.

Daphne Tsimhoni

Northeastern University

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Middle Eastern History

Professor Tsimhoni is a Senior Lecturer (Adjunct) in the Department of Humanities and Arts at the Technion-Israeli Institute of Technology. Her research and numerous publications address minorities in the Middle East, including the issues of Christians in Israel and the West Bank, Church activity and its impact on Christians in the Middle East, the Jews of Iraq in Modern Times and Jews from Arab Lands. Her book is titled Christian Communities in Jerusalem and the West Bank Since 1948, An Historical, Social and Political Study (1993).

Joseph Turner

University of Indiana

Schusterman Visiting Israeli Professor

Modern Jewish Philosophy

Professor Turner is a Senior Lecturer in Modern Jewish Philosophy at the Schechter Institute of Jewish Studies in Jerusalem. His research focuses on Jewish thought throughout the ages with a special emphasis on the modern period, Zionist and Diasporist thought, The State of Israel in the period of globalization, faith after the Holocaust and the philosophy of Halakhah. He received rabbinic ordination from the Seminary of Judaic Studies in Jerusalem and an M.A. and Ph.D. in Jewish Thought and Philosophy from the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. His books include: Faith and Humanism: A Study of Franz Rosenzweig's Religious Philosophy and Interactions Between Judaism and Christianity in History, Religion, Art, and Literature (co-editor). Forthcoming publications are: Zionism and Diasporism: A Philosophical Inquiry into the Problems of Contemporary Jewish Existence and Faith Truth and Reason:

Collected Essays Following the International Franz Rosenzweig Conference in Jerusalem 2006 (co-editor).

Rakafet Zalashik

University of Virginia

Dollye & Wolford Berman Visiting Israeli Professor Psychiatry and History

Professor Zalashik is an expert in the history and psychology of the Jewish experience, including the impact of the psychiatric experience of immigration, pioneering, the Holocaust and military culture on Israeli history. She has written widely on these and other topics in the nexus of psychiatric experience and history in academic journals. Her books include: Ad Nafesh: Refugees, Immigrants, Newcomers and the Israeli Psychiatric Establishment (2008) and the forthcoming Health and Zionism, (2009, Nadav Davidovitch). She has taught in Israel, Europe and the United States on modern Jewish history, including the topics of the Holocaust, Israeli History and Sociology.